Q16: Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? President Biden claims to uphold values of safety and freedom. He has even recognized that people have a legal right to seek asylum. But now he is doubling down on Trump’s policies that harm people who are just trying to reach safety. The Biden administration should protect the universal human right to seek asylum.

I understand why they are fleeing instability and violence in their country and I wish the U.S. would have a more welcoming and accepting approach to helping migrants	49	46	51	67	42	38	57	50	24
I understand why they are fleeing poverty and violence in their country, but it is not our fault and the U.S. should not be expected to accept every immigrant who comes	30	31	30	20	31	39	25	26	49
I think many of the immigrants are not actually refugees, they are coming to the U.S. to look for jobs and take advantage of our schools, health care and services	21	23	19	13	27	23	18	24	26

Q15: Do you agree or disagree with the following statement? We all want the same thing: a safe place to raise our families. For some, that means moving to another neighborhood, and for others, it means coming to a new country. President Biden is currently making it harder for those seeking safety on our shores to go through the legal process to do so, creating chaos and uncertainty along the border.

Q17: Now you will see statements from people who think we should create a fair and orderly process for migrants who wish to apply for asylum. How convincing do you find each of these statements?

Q17a: Instead of turning away people seeking protection, the United States should have a fair, just system that reflects principled values and welcomes law-abiding immigrants seeking asylum protections.

Q17c: The United States has a long tradition of treating those in search of freedom with dignity. Freedom includes the right to seek safety, to start anew and build a better life. Under U.S. immigration law, we have legal obligations to offer those unable to return to their country of origin or who are at risk of persecution a chance at safety. This ensures the freedom of those fleeing poor conditions. We must protect that freedom just as we fight to protect all our other freedoms.

Q17f: [REPUBLICAN SPLIT]The United States prides itself as a beacon of hope for those around the world seeking freedom: freedom to move, freedom of expression, and freedom over their own bodies. By seeking to limit migrants’ rights, certain Republican politicians are endangering freedom for everyone.

Q17g: [MAGA SPLIT] Current asylum seekers are similar to those who came to our shores seeking freedom in previous generations: They are resilient, intrepid, and courageous and are exactly the people we should be welcoming to our communities. Instead, certain MAGA politicians want to divide our countries and shut the door on those seeking safety. This anti-freedom attitude is wrong for our communities and the future of our country.
